Monolec® Gear Lubricant – LE703

Roadranger Gearbox in a 2006 Mitsubishi Shogun FV350KS 6 Wheeler Tipper truck.

- 200,000 km on same oil
- Protects gearbox from wear
- Extended oil drain intervals 4 x OEM recommended drain intervals.

Customer Profile:

Maelihn Contracting provides removal of earth to tip-sites & bulk haulage of Aggregates for their clients.

Application:

Mitsubishi Road Ranger Gearbox. Dave purchased his Road Ranger Truck in August 2014 with 401,000 kilometres on the odometer.

Challenge:

OEM recommends oil changes every 50,000 km, Dave wanted to protect the gearbox from wear and extend oil drain intervals.

Results:

Dave changed the transmission oil to Monolec LE703 & filter on the 03/04/2015. Since then he has replaced the oil filter twice.

On the 26 August 2020, Dave took an oil sample from the gearbox & sent it to the lab to be analysed. This showed the LE703 was ok for continued use and no wear metals present.

LE703 has achieved over 200,000 kilometres on the first initial oil change, the oil and gearbox are still in excellent condition.

LE Solution:

Monolec® Gear Lubricant, LE703 (SAE80W-90)

Monolec Gear Lubricant offers the versatility of one product that meets the demanding extreme pressure (EP) fleet requirements of all types of differentials (including limited slip) and transmissions, as well as most industrial enclosed gearboxes. A multi-viscosity extreme pressure gear oil, Monolec Gear Lubricant was formulated to achieve the proper balance between load-carrying capacity, film strength and lubricity. This is not an automatic transmission fluid, hydraulic or semi-automatic transmission oil and is not for use in common sump systems that use combination gear-hydraulic oil, hydraulic oil or a power steering fluid.

“Our first truck driver who has over 40 years driving experience rang owner Antony after driving for a short time wanting to know what he had done to the truck as the gear shifting was unbelievably smooth & easier than previously”

Thank you Dave & Antony Mallin – Maelihn Contracting
